Grammar

Jiù yào dào Zhōngguó de xīnnián le.

1. 就要到 中国 的 新年 了。 The Chinese New Year is coming.

In Chinese, the structure “就要……了” indicates that something is about to happen. You can also say “快要……了” or “快……了”, “要……了”.

For example:

Subject		V.(+O.)
bàba 爸爸 father	jiù yào/kuài yào/kuài/yào 就要/ 快要/ 快 / 要 is going to/is about to	huílai 回来 come back	le 了
—		xià yǔ 下雨 rain

huǒchē 火车 train		kāi 开 to leave
Hànyǔ kè 汉语 课 Chinese lesson		kāishǐ 开始 to start

Wǒ dìdì lái guo yí cì.

2. 我 弟弟 来过 一 次。 My brother has been here once.

次 is a measure word which means time.

For example:

yí cì liǎng cì sān cì
一次 once 两 次 twice 三 次 three times

“Number+次” is usually used after a verb to indicate the number of times an action has taken place.

For example:

Subject	Verb	Num.+次	Object
wǒ 我 I	zuòguo 坐过 to sit	sān cì 三 次 three times	fēijī 飞机 plane
tā 他 he	láiguo 来过 to come	yí cì 一 次 once	Zhōngguó 中国 China
tāmen 他们 they	kànguo 看过 to watch	liǎng cì 两 次 twice	diànyǐng 电影 film

Note that when the object is a place, “Number+次” can be put either before or after the object.

For example:

Wǒ qùguo sān cì Shànghǎi. Wǒ qùguo Shànghǎi sān cì.

- 我 去过 三 次 上海。 = 我 去过 上海 三 次。

I have been to Shanghai three times.

Wǒ láiguò yí cì zhèlǐ. Wǒ láiguò zhèlǐ yí cì.

- 我 来 过 一 次 这 里。 = 我 来 过 这 里 一 次。

I've been here once.

However, when the object is a person, "Number+次" can only be put after the object.

For example:

Subject	Verb	Object	Num.+次
wǒ 我 I	jiànguò 见过 to meet	nǐ 你 you	sān cì 三 次 three times
wǒmen 我们 we	zhǎoguò 找过 to find	tā 他 he	yí cì 一 次 once
lǎoshī 老师 teacher	jiàole 叫了 to call	tā 他 he	liǎng cì 两 次 twice

Tā shuō de bǐ wǒ hǎo.

3. 她 说 得 比 我 好。 She speaks better than me.

when a state complement and a comparison appear in the same sentence, the part to be compared can be placed either before the verb or before the adjective. The structure is:

A 比 B+V.+ 得 +Adj. = A+V.+ 得 + 比 +B+Adj.

It means A do sth more adj. than B.

For example:

Tā bǐ wǒ xué de kuài. Tā xué de bǐ wǒ kuài.

- 他 比 我 学 得 快。 = 他 学 得 比 我 快。

He learns faster than me.

Xiǎo Míng bǐ Xiǎo Hóng pǎo de kuài. Xiǎo Míng pǎo de bǐ Xiǎo Hóng kuài.

- 小 明 比 小 红 跑 得 快。 = 小 明 跑 得 比 小 红 快。

Xiaoming runs faster than Xiaohong.

Mǎkè bǐ nǐ shuō de hǎo. Mǎkè shuō de bǐ nǐ hǎo.

- 马克 比你 说 得 好。 = 马克 说 得 比 你 好。

Mark speaks better than you.

1. 小 姐姐 —— 小 哥哥 pretty girl -- cute boy

In Chinese, we call our elder brothers “哥哥” and our elder sisters “姐姐”. But did you know that in recent years, “小哥哥” and “小姐姐” have become popular terms in China. However, we do not use them to address our own brothers and sisters, but to address young people of the same age as a gesture of kindness and friendliness.

For example:

Xiǎo jiějie, qǐngwèn yíxià zhège bīngqílín zài nǎr mǎi de?

2. 眼睛 & 眼镜

The pronunciation of 眼睛 and 眼镜 is very similar, but their meanings are completely different. 眼睛 means eyes and 眼镜 means glasses. When you speak Chinese, you should pay attention to the tone of these two words, otherwise there may be misunderstandings.

Wǒ shì jìnshì yǎn, suǒyǐ wǒ xūyào dài yǎnjìng.

- 我 是 近 视 眼, 所 以 我 需 要 戴 眼 镜。

My eyes are not good so I wear glasses.

中 国 人 的 家 属 称 谓 Chinese Appellation of Relatives

In Chinese families, relatives of different generations on both sides of the family have different titles. For example, father's parents are called “爷爷(yéye)” and “奶奶(nǎinai)”, but mother's parents are called “姥姥(lǎolao)” and “姥爷(lǎoye)”. Father's brother is called “叔叔(shūshu)” or “伯伯(bóbo)”, but mother's brother is called “舅舅(jiùjiu)”. Father's sister is called “姑姑(gūgu)”, while mother's sister is called “阿姨(āyí)”. In addition to these appellations of elders, we also have different titles for our peers. For example, the children of “叔叔” or “伯伯” are our “堂兄(tángxiōng)”, “堂弟(tángdì)”, “堂姐(tángjiě)”, or “堂妹(tángmèi)”, while children of other relatives are our “表兄(biǎoxiōng)”, “表弟(biǎodì)”, “表姐(biǎojiě)”, or “表妹(biǎomèi)”.
